Introduction

You individuals reading this are truly a result of the genetic experiment on Earth. You are beings who uphold the principles of the Explorer Race. I want you to know that the information in this book is designed to show you who you are and give you an evolutionary understanding of your past that will help you now. The key to empowerment in these days is to not know everything about your past, but to know that which will help you now. If you were to know all about your past, many things would confuse you and sidetrack you. But now you must take the express — the bus that goes from point A to point B without stopping in between — because so much of what is going on now commands your immediate action.

Time, as you've heard, is changing. It is not growing short, it's just changing. This means that you are on an accelerated pace of responsibility. Your souls have been here for a while on Earth and have been trained in Earthlike conditions. This education has been designed so that you would have the ability to explore all levels of responsibility — results, effects and consequences — and take on more responsibilities. You have done this. Even as I speak now, you are experiencing more and more intense energies. These energies are associated with creation and creation energies. This is why you must be very clear these days. You must not have casual fantasies that are negative! If you notice them, change them immediately to something else. You can't really erase what you've fantasized or thought, but you can immediately change it. As I've said before, it takes a tremendous amount of energy to change the past, but only a teeny little bit of energy to create something new.

Because your responsibility is growing day by day, you need to have tools. Yes, you need some understanding of the past; yes, some understanding of what is to come; yes, an understanding of what to do now — all these are very good. Yet you must know that your number one function right now is your status of Creator apprentice, which you have achieved through years and lifetimes of sweat. As Creator apprentice, this means that you are constantly being given responsibilities by the Creator that would normally be things that Creator would do. Now this responsibility is thrust upon you. So in your explorations in this lifetime as well as in the future to the stars, you will know that your responsibility lies very strongly and significantly in applying the wisdom you have learned, because that which you do through wisdom must work! You must know it works. It can't be a "maybe" anymore, it can't be a "might be," it can't be "we hope." You have to apply what does work.

Now, this doesn't mean you cannot experiment, but that you will experiment at times when there is not much riding on it. You don't experiment with mass events that affect many, many people; you experiment with friends who know you're experimenting. It's something you're trying out: "Let's try this," you say. Or your friend says to you, "Let's try that." So you experiment, and if it works, then you try it with a larger group. And if it works with a larger group, then you try it with many, many. But only apply to the many what you know for certain is benevolent and works. These intense energies coming through now are only the precursor to what the Creator apprentice must work with.

So here is homework for you, Explorer Race individuals! When you are feeling energies (recognizable to those who are not specifically tuned in to feeling energies by their extra nervous energy; those who are will know what they're feeling), I want you to focus on visualizations with that energy. In the past you've done visualizations somewhat out of your body, or when putting your body into a relaxed state. This time I want you to do your visualizations a little differently. Since you will tend to feel the bulk of this physical, kinetic energy (which is creation energy on this level), I want you to hold a beautiful visualization and put it right into your solar plexus. Not inside your body, but take the image and rest it at the base of your sternum, where your upper abdomen begins. This will be somewhat physical for many of you. Create something beautiful. It can be simple, such as color and waves of color, or it can be a feeling — peace, happiness, joy, whatever is easiest for you to attain — but it must be a full-body feeling. Then focus it on your solar plexus, as if you were laying it on the surface, and then project it outward.

You see, in Creator apprentice training you learn how physical reality is created. You've often wondered whether physical reality is some vague consensus of unconscious thoughts, but it really isn't. It's a physical creation that is focused through the physical being, as if each of you are lenses of the Creator's focus. So it is time to consciously begin to use yourself as a lens! Many visualizations and meditations have been designed to create relaxation or certain goals within your body.

Now, this picture that you hold in your mind's eye, imagine it up by your head and between your hands. Then bring your hands down, resting your wrists on the lower rib cage. Hold this vision between your hands right where your solar plexus begins, and then aim your fingers and this vision of beauty and peace and wonder — whatever you can create — out into the world at large. You can put gold light in it if you wish, or white light. I recommend a combination of the two because gold light is permanent and white light is consumable. You may use other colors — I would recommend pink, or you may use light blue if you like. Be creative, imaginative, try what you will. Hold that for a few moments and broadcast it outward. You have no idea yet how strong your Creator potential is.

This is a wonderful thing to do in your meditation circles with many people. You might even create a consensus of a picture of beauty by looking at a picture or a painting that you find beautiful. Hold it, imagine it between your hands in energy, then aim it outward from your solar plexus to your planet.

As a Creator apprentice, it is literally your job now to create what Earth will look like in the fourth dimension. You are still parked at 3.47, as I call it [between third and fourth dimension], but the time is coming soon when you will begin to move forward again. Before the end of the year you will most likely begin to move forward again incrementally. This is why you need to set your intention: to create the world you're going to move into. The more you focus on your fears, your anxieties, your suspicions and so on, the more you're going to create and perpetuate that world. But this is something you can do that will literally create the new world.

The responsibility of the Explorer Race is not only to explore, but to create. Suppose you're out there in generations to come, exploring the planets. Suppose you find some planet that is going through something that is destroying the civilization? Maybe the planet is overvolcanic. Maybe there are too many earthquakes. Maybe the planet itself would like to be rescued, to say nothing of the civilizations on the surface. You, as the Explorer Race, Creator apprentice, will then hold a picture of how you would like that planet to look. You will talk to the citizens: "What did your civilization look like? How do you want it to look?" They will describe it to you and show you pictures, and you will hold that picture between your hands, place it over your solar plexus and aim it toward that planet. Or by that time you may be using other techniques, one of which basically involves pointing your hands in a certain manner. Or maybe you will direct it from your third eye. But most likely you will use your solar plexus, because that is the Creator area for physical reality. And you will be able to help calm the planet, calm the inner turmoil within the planet, bring the planet itself love, balance and benevolence, and help to rebuild the surface civilization and cities with these visions that go beyond thought and become manifested as physical reality.

This is the destiny of the Explorer Race — not only to explore, but to create.

The Genetic Experiment on Earth

Zoosh and Joopah

New York City, October 1987

ll right. I [Zoosh] will be the master of ceremonies tonight of your time, and I will at some point introduce Joopah, who will tell you a little bit about himself. It is important tonight that you begin to understand that the reason for your survival on this planet may have less to do with the comforts than the discomforts. Recognize that you human beings as a species did not naturally evolve here. You were seeded here, not specifically as you look now, but very much like it. Most of the different so-called races were seeded from different corners of the universe, but this was accomplished in a relatively short span of time.

Many years ago — and really beyond the measurement of years into what could simply be called dimensions ago — there was a need by the universe for a place where ideas that had not moved elsewhere could be experimented upon. Thus it would be necessary to have a planet that would be capable of instant manifestation — so instantaneous, in fact, that manifesting would not have to be a conscious act. In that way the structural, social and biological engineers who manipulate environments were called upon to this little corner of the galaxy you now occupy.

The First Terra

There was at that time another planet that you would recognize from a distance as being different from this one, occupying this space that you now occupy on your planet Earth. The atmosphere and the continental distribution on the planet were a little different; the color would be green rather than the predominant blue you know now. The continents would appear at a distance as a little more golden in color rather than the darker shades one sees from space when approaching Earth. That planet we can for our convenience refer to as Terra. It existed then at a slightly higher or quicker dimension. Dimension in this case refers to a place rather than a state of advancement, so when I say higher I don't mean better; I mean a place that was a little different. But that space is the same space Earth now occupies.

However, Earth as you know it did not then exist, even though in this dimension there were the makings of a planetary body (bodies exist as needed in other dimensions). However, your ancestors were in a higher dimension, and Earth did not exist to them. So it was pondered what to do about the situation — whether to keep the planet Terra as an instantly manifesting planet where all could be created, given the biological and sociological soup that might be tossed in, or whether to create a planet at a slower vibration. It was considered at length, and it was decided that Terra, at its vibration, would not be slow enough for those individuals manifesting themselves on the planet that would come to be called Earth, and that they would not be able to understand their lessons and their experiences because of their slower, denser vibration as a resource planet for the fifth dimension. So it was considered that this slower third-dimensional vibration would be used to manifest Earth.

Working with the Light, the God Structure, the One — whatever you wish to call it — was then a manifestation of Earth, what you might call a photocopy of Terra at a slower vibration. Terra really is a planet that is slightly different in composition. If you were to experience it in this dimension, it is something you could not get your hands on, something you could not really touch, because the spaces between the molecules are farther apart and the motion of the molecules so fast that you would not really be able, in your dimension, to grasp it. So it was necessary to have something a little slower, a little more solid.

As a result, what was created through the manipulation of biogenetic energies was the planet you now reside on. Though it looked a little different at that time, it was essentially the same in the shape of its continents; and its atmosphere was something perceived from a distance as blue. It was also necessary to have it be a very active planet that could be perceived from a different dimension as unstable. (It is not really unstable; it just had to be alive as you understand life, wherein birth and death and change were so commonplace that that type of event would not be considered unusual.) Earth and those who would live upon it would be beings that would have a given span of life and would have eruptions from the physical bodies of themselves as well as eruptions from the Earth. There would be a form of mirror image so that the beings who occupied the planet would be able to feel that they had a direct heritage of this planet.

These social engineers, working with a species closer to Terra who could also transfer their energies to Earth, began to create what you now know as the human being. These Terrans are beings who now live beneath the Earth but not below the crust. As many of you know, there are beings and whole civilizations living inside this planet at higher dimensions, but I do not refer to these at this time. I refer rather to what you might refer to scientifically as the missing link, and in this case I am not referring to the so-called Abominable Snowman, Yeti and all these other names. I am referring to a being and a race of beings that combines both sexes, can reproduce itself and is quite tall and somewhat hairy (not as hairy as the big guys that roam around on the surface from time to time, though they be shy).

Thus, what occurred was an evolution, a change. The creation of an Earth hybrid race was needed. The Terrans transferred their bodies to this slower dimension and became denser, and it was perceived that their bodies were very strong, powerful, durable and could withstand a great deal of onslaught. It was considered necessary to have a race of beings populate this planet for whom danger would be a threat. (I know this is controversial, but I am nothing if not controversial.) The beings who came here on the ship — their number, naturally, 144,000 — would actually integrate their soul consciousness, their ego structure and their desires into this planet, and would recreate themselves through the natural physical acts and through genetic stimulation and social engineering. They would become an Earth race, human beings in different variations to test which types are more durable and to provide certain variations in certain geographic areas — all part of the experiment. A hybridized Earth race would be thus created. You are that result, but not of a casual creation. They didn't drop you off and say, "Well, have fun, see you later." It has been a very gradual experiment.

Now, I want to bring out the fact that this all evolved from the Terran influence of those beings who were genetically volunteering unconsciously and even consciously (since the Terran beings who manifested here were in total telepathic touch with themselves, their race and the universe, for that matter. I want to point out that the 144,000 as well as the Terrans volunteered. Thus no soul that ever incarnates on this planet now, in the past or in the future can trace its roots back to anything other than that 144,000. You may say, "But, Zoosh, there's a lot more than 144,000 people on this planet." I would reply, "That's fine. But for every tree that you see there are many branches, many leaves and many seedlings. So you can look at the 144,000 as being the tree trunks, the tap roots, if you would; and the branches would be branches of the soul-trees that expanded in order to create as many variations as
